Thillie F. Lowe, sixteen years of age, came to this city from her home at Crisfield, Md., yesterday afternoon expecting to be met at the hotel by a young man, who was to be her employment. The latter failed to meet her and she went in search of him at the address given her, 606 W. Street. Failing to find the young man, Miss Lowe strolled about the streets until about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when she met Policeman Turner of the eighth precinct near Florida avenue.

Being a stranger in the city and having no friends upon whom she could call, the young lady appealed to the policeman for assistance. The latter escorted her to the police station and later she was sent to the house of detention to be cared for by the matron. Her story to the police was that last summer a man called on her and offered her a position as a saleswoman in a store. She accepted the position and was to be paid $4 a week and her board. When she learned that there was no store, she was sent to the address given her and she was told that she was deceived, and she said she would like to return home and remain there.
